IMPATIENT TORRENT

Paying little heed to a picturesque old irrigation dam thrown across its bed, the swollen Sprague River becomes a roaring torrent as it sweeps through the pine-studded paradise that is south central Oregon.

Return of the Pacific Pachyderms

By Douglas Nelson Rhodes

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S picturesque sea elephant colony, threatened with extinction only a few years ago, is making a phenomenal comeback. In 1946 there were but 50 of these gigantic "pachyderms of the Pacific" at lonely San Nicholas Island, 65 miles off the coast of Santa Barbara, only spot on the California seaboard inhabited by the strange animals. A check recently completed by Robert D. Collier, aquatic biologist, reveals that the herd has increased to more than 150 of the monsters and is still growing, thus putting at rest fears of scientists that the sea elephant was destined to join the dodo bird in limbo.

A half century ago these strange aquatic pachyderms were valuable prey of whalers and professional sea elephant hunters because of the rich oil which they render. Named for their elephantlike snouts and great size, they are in reality members of the seal family but sometimes measure 20 feet in length and weigh up to two and a half tons. They yield 200 to 300 gallons each of oil similar to whale oil. Many fortunes were founded on the proceeds of sea elephant hunts during the last century. In fact, unrestrained hunting activity was one of the two main factors in finally depleting the herds to the point of extinction.

Great migrant colonies, each comprised of thousands of sea elephants, once roamed the Pacific Coast from the Guadalupe Islands off the coast of Lower California to points near the Oregon border. Killing them was very easy because in spite of their immense size and fearsome appearance, sea elephants are virtually defenseless—and unwisely trustful of man. Naturally curious, they take to the water at the approach of human beings but once afloat they keep close to the shore staring and barking at the intruders. After thus administering a thorough scolding to the strangers the creatures usually crawl back on the beach and resume their naps. Hunters could then saunter about at will with clubs, slaughtering them by the hundreds.

Very little personal danger was incurred by the hunters. Even when brutally treated, sea elephants are unable to fight back or run except in a slow, lumbering elephantine fashion. Their chief defense when approached is simply to rouse up and threaten the intruder with a horrible grimace—a futile face-making bluff that was always called by seasoned hunters.

TODAY sea elephants are under the protection of a rigid law and heavy penalties are levied on anyone caught molesting them. The U. S. action to stop depredation of the herds followed the Mexican government's initial conservation efforts. Mexico made the Guadalupe Islands a sanctuary a few years ago and the remainder of the small southern herd was saved from extinction. It is not known if this herd is increasing.

The second factor in the disappearance of the once-familiar Pacific pachyderms is a mysteriously high infant mortality rate among the animals. In his survey, Collier found many dead sea elephant pups on the beach of San Nicholas. Since there are no natural enemies on the island—the largest predatory animal being a small fox—biologists theorize that the young are dying from some inability of the mothers to nourish them.

San Nicholas Island, a rocky, uninhabited chunk of land, contains the only remaining rookery for sea elephants in the U. S. Here the amphibious mammoths bask in the sun with their harems of a dozen cows each, eat quantities of easily-caught small fish that abound in the semitropical waters, and play endless games of elephantine tag with the hundreds of smaller sea lions who also make their home on San Nicholas.

THE MAIN difference between sea elephants and sea lions—those same clever circus jugglers with their amusing appetite for fish and applause—is that sea lions are much smaller, have an external ear which is visible and flippers that can be turned forward so that their progress on land is faster than either the common seal or the sea elephant. Membranes in the water elephant's flippers prevent the members from being turned forward but there is a compensating advantage; they can be curled over the animal's back for frequent scratching, a feat that can't be achieved by sea lions. In appearance the flipper resembles a huge human hand.

The San Nicholas pachyderm rookery extends along the island's coast for nearly five miles and the clamorous barking can be heard at least two miles from land. The "maternity ward" where cows bear their young, is a small, sandy beach surrounded on three sides by a rock-protected cove. It is situated on the loneliest and most inaccessible section of the island.

When the pups are old enough to swim, the mothers take their broods to a series of rocky pools inshore where the youngsters can disport themselves safe from the treacherous eddies of the pounding surf.

Once slaughtered brutally for a rich oil they rendered, sea elephants off the Southland coast are increasing again. Above, a closeup of the huge animals.

Sea elephants have many social characteristics amazingly like man's and obey a strict code of ethics in their community life. There is a "division of labor" whereby much of the fishing is done by young "drafts" of both sexes and even a social security in sea elephant civilization which demands that the young and agile feed and protect the aged. It is a civilization where the male is master, however. The oldest and wisest bull elephant is monarch—a benevolent despot who rules the cows and younger males with a firm flipper. There's no compromise about it, either. In a sea elephant household, "papa is all."

Fierce-looking but mild, almost defenseless, is this sea elephant shown at offshore Pacific island haven.

Old West Lives

By Earl W. Scott

THE OLD WEST will live again in Lincoln Town, N. Mex., on Aug. 17.

Once again down the valley of the Bonito in southern New Mexico will come the terrifying war cry of Apache braves, the roar of six-guns and the ominous clatter of outlaw hooves. Native pageantry will be at its best as valley people relive the tumultuous days of the 1870s. It's the Lincoln County War all over again in six dramatic episodes—boys in blue and feathered braves—cattle kings and renegade settlers.

There'll be battles under the stars, muchachos and senoritas—the whine of fiddles and soft thrumming of guitars. Romance, color and — Billy the Kid!

The story of William Bonney's capture, his last escape and untimely death... all will be depicted with a cast of a 100 native actors, many of them descendants of those who participated in the famed "range war."

County Historical Society, general activities for the Aug. 17 celebration, begin 4 p. m. in and about the streets.

At 8 p. m., attention centers on the Old Court House and its grounds where the outdoor pageant, "A Day in Old Lincoln," takes place. It was in and about this historic building, now a state monument, that these events actually occurred, a half century ago.

Thousands trek each year to this little mountain town near Capitan Mountain, to relive its page of history in "The Land of Enchantment."

Camping on the Boulevard

By Mildred Killam

THE YOUNG LADIES in the accompanying pictures are lucky to be living in Long Beach and to belong to the Brownies. They go camping without traveling any farther into the country than Lakewood. Their camping ground is the Girl Scout Ranch House at 4016 Bellflower Blvd. Sixty to 75 girls work and play there in a happy outdoor life two days a week for three-week sessions.

Their busy day starts with a flag raising ceremony at 9:45. They sing the national anthem, or "America the Beautiful," a Brownie favorite, gathered around the flag pole.

Next they break up into units of six or more girls of the same age from different parts of the city. "Interest catcher" time is an hour devoted to such pastimes as catching bugs to place in miniature "zoos."

The biggest part of the camping day is spent cooking the noon meal. A "caper chart" tells each girl whether she should act as fire-builder, wood-chopper, water-carrier, kettle-soaker, hostess or cleaner-upper. Such mouth-watering dishes as chili beans, spaghetti and sausages baked in potatoes are cooked by the girls in true Scout fashion over open fires.

Army mess kits are the unglamorous dinnerware, but the Brownies claim that the food tastes better than it does in the finest china. Perhaps that is because it is eaten in the semioutdoors of palm leaf huts.

The flag is taken down to the singing of taps at 2:45. The girls then rush home to chatter happily to mother about the day's activities.

The girls have a chance to do some "play-acting" at the end of each session, when they present a skit. Brownies of the first session of the summer became mean old witches and beautiful damsels to act out a pantomime called "Thorne Rosa."

THE SUPERVISORY part of the day camp is managed by mothers of the girls. Mrs. Helen Wagner is an example. Her daughter, Diane, was starting the third grade of MacArthur School in Lakewood last fall. Mrs. Wagner wanted her to belong to a Brownie Troop, but there was no troop for third-graders in the new school.

Believing that there is more than one way to accomplish a thing, Mrs. Wagner decided to take over and organize a

Each morning the Brownies, who camp out just a stone's throw from busy Bellflower Blvd. in Lakewood, start their busy day with a flag-raising ceremony.

"PASS THE SALT, please."

Nothing quite so common today as salt, but had you lived in medieval times, your request would have gone unfulfilled, for salt was very expensive, very rare, and it was a mark of social distinction for those who did possess it.

Because salt was difficult to obtain, massive silver holders known as "standing salts" were fashioned by the silversmiths. This container was placed before the master of the house who doled it out with care. Guests were seated according to their social rank, and the more prominent you were the closer you sat to the salt. Hence that old saying about "being seated above (or below) the salt." More common today is the expression "He isn't worth his salt." In those days, if you weren't worth it you didn't get any of the precious salt.

Charles I, in his diary dated 1625, recorded selling his "gold salt weighing 150 ounces, and studded with sapphires, rubies, pearls and emeralds."

As time went on, these standing salts were reduced in size and became cylindrical and rectangular, richly chased, and with perforated lids. They were called "dredges," a box with holes in it, like that used for flour in the kitchen. Soon they were made in sets of two troop herself. Three-year-old JoAnne was left with grandma three days a week for three weeks while Mrs. Wagner went to the ranch house for a training session. This entitled her to lead a troop and to counsel at the day camp.

The three weeks were crammed with learning all the tricks of the Girl Scout trade. The mothers read and practiced until they could build a fire, organize working units by "caper charts," and knew all of the Girl Scout songs and dances.

Down the Grand Canyon's BRIGHT ANGEL TRAIL

America's vast and beautiful chasm, the Grand Canyon, has never ending appeal for vacationists. One of the attractions of the famed resort is a trip down Bright Angel Trail from the south rim to the Colorado River far below. The trip is by muleback and, for many, is a 2-day event with the hospitable Phantom Ranch (above) on the canyon floor as first-day objective.

Heading downward into the Grand Canyon, a trail party leaves for Phantom Ranch on sure-footed mules. Canyon is 217 miles long, 18 miles wide, mile deep, colored in ever-changing hues.

Disclosing new scenic wonders at every turn, the trail winds safely down the canyon walls.

Party bound for Phantom Ranch approaches suspension bridge crossing the Colorado's waters.

Welcome sight to tired but happy riders is the ranch where cabins, food and relaxation await.

Back up the trail the next day, riders may look back into the deepening shadows within the canyon in the late afternoon. The trip to river and back can also be made in a one-day ride.

El Tovar Hotel on south rim serves tourists who arrive by auto or Santa Fe Streamliner.

Plan a Barbecue Supper

By Mildred K. Flanary

EVENING WARM? Sun-ny? Company coming? The answer to any of these questions can be an outdoor barbecue — the modern day variation of the old-fashioned picnic. Of course, night-before planning, early-morning cooking, and basket packing are strictly passe. Get the fire started and make way! It's every man for himself as a backyard chef!

Starring on the grill — barbecued turkey. No longer a holiday or seasonal bird, plump tasty turkeys are ideal barbecue fare. A spicy, savory sauce, snappy in taste and appearance, brushed on the quartered turkey as it broils, will turn this barbecue meal into a memorable occasion. Just follow the directions given below for the turkey. Elsewhere on this page is the recipe for the barbecue sauce.

Barbecued Turkey for Outdoor Cooking

2 broiler turkeys (2½ to 4 lbs. each) quartered
Pure monosodium glutamate, salt and pepper
Have turkey quartered at market. Sprinkle with monosodium glutamate, salt and pepper. Let stand while preparing barbecue sauce. When sauce is ready, and the charcoal a deep bed of glowing coals, grease the rack thoroughly and place turkey quarters on rack, skin side down. Broil slowly 15 minutes. Turn; brush with sauce. Repeat until turkey is done (about 1 hour for a 2½-lb. ready-to-cook turkey). Test by cutting into thickest part of meat on drumstick. It should

BARBECUE SAUCE For Turkey

- 2 8-oz cans tomato sauce
- 1 cup chicken bouillon
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- ½ teaspoon pure monosodium glutamate
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- ¼ teaspoon oregano or marjoram
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Combine all ingredients; simmer until reduced by about ¼.

A sauce that is excellent to use with barbecued turkey is given above. Clip it for your file and for a trial.

cut easily and there should be no pink color visible. Serve extra sauce with the turkey. Makes 8 servings.

Should chicken be the order of the day, perhaps you'll like these methods of preparing it:

Barbecued Oven-Fried Chicken

- ¼ cup salad oil or fat
- 1 2½-to-3-lb. ready-to-cook broiler-fryer, quartered
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon bottled meat sauce
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ cup catsup
- Dash tabasco sauce

Heat salad oil in skillet; add chicken; brown well on all sides over high heat. Remove to shallow baking pan; pour on rest of ingredients, combined. Bake, uncovered, basting every 10 minutes with sauce, at 350° F. (moderate) 1 hour, or until tender. (If sauce gets too thick, stir in a little water.) Makes 4 servings.

Maggie's Fried Chicken

The night before, salt and pepper, then chill, a 2-lb. cut-up ready-to-cook broiler-fryer. To fry, roll chicken well on all sides in flour. Arrange in large skillet in ¼-inch hot fat; don't crowd. Cover; fry briskly till crust forms on bottom. Lower heat; fry slowly till rich brown. Turn; increase heat; fry, uncovered, till rich brown and done. (Drain cooked pieces on paper; keep warm.) Serve as is or with hot barbecue sauce. Good with bread-and-butter sandwiches.

To serve cold: Cool quickly; refrigerate at once. Eat within 4 hours after removing from refrigerator. Should the occasion be impromptu you'll like the following suggestions, including some "Barbecued Quickies."

Mixed Grills

Choose 1, 2 or 3 below. Season; brush with melted butter or margarine; grill or broil, starting with food that takes longest, so that all food is done at same time.

1. Hamburger patties, tomato halves, mushroom caps.
2. Hamburger patties; scored, cooked white or sweet potato halves; canned or fresh peach or pear halves, or canned pineapple chunks or slices.
3. Hamburger patties, bacon, banana halves, franks.

Teen-Ager Submarines

Combine ¼ lb. chuck beef, ground, with ¼ cup sifted dried bread crumbs, ¼ cup minced onion, ¼ teaspoon cornstarch, dash allspice, 1 beaten egg, ¼ cup top milk, ¼ teaspoon salt. Shape mixture into 30 small balls; heat ¼ cup fat in skillet; brown meat balls on all sides; add 1 cup barbecue sauce; let simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Outdoors, the gang takes over, spooning meat balls and sauce into split frankfurter rolls or baked brown and serve French bread. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Hamburger Stacks

Lightly shape chuck beef, ground, into very thin 4-inch patties; brown in small amount of fat in skillet, 1½ to 2 minutes on each side. Serve as follows, with catsup, mustard, pickle relish or chili sauce.

With hashed browns: Put hashed brown potatoes between 2 patties.

With baked beans: For each serving, stack 3 meat patties, putting hot canned baked beans between each.

With flapjacks: For each serving, stack 3 thin pancakes (packaged mix), putting 1 meat patty between each.

Barbecued Quickies

Grill-Barbecued Luncheon Meat: Cut 1 can luncheon meat or chopped ham into slices. Grill over glowing coals, or broil until golden brown, basting frequently with barbecue sauce. Place in split hamburger buns or between toasted enriched-bread slices.

Skillet-Barbecued Luncheon Meat: Cut 1 can luncheon meat or chopped, ham into thin slices. Lightly saute in 2 tablespoons melted "butter" in skillet. Rub with 1 peeled clove garlic. Pour on sauce made of 2 tablespoons dry mustard, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 5 tablespoons sherry. Brown on both sides.

Barbecued Bologna Roll: Use 3-lb. piece of bologna warmed to room temperature. Remove casing; halve crosswise; deeply score surfaces. Spread with plain or horseradish-flavored prepared mustard; dot with cloves. Put each half on 2 long skewers; grill over hot coals, turning and basting often with barbecue sauce, until brown and thoroughly heated.

Skillet Hashburgers: Chill can of corned beef hash; open ends; push hash out in one piece. Cut into slices. Slowly brown well on both sides in hot fat in skillet. Serve plain. Or serve each slice on half a buttered, toasted hamburger bun; serve coleslaw or grilled tomato slice on other half. Or serve between toasted enriched-bread slices with hot barbecue sauce.

Grilled Braunschweiger: Lightly brown ¼-inch slices of braunschweiger, bologna, or semidry salami in fat in skillet. Or grill about 3 to 4 minutes. (Brush with barbecue sauce if you wish.) Serve plain or as suggested in Skillet Hashburgers (above).

Grilled Bacon: Place layer of bacon slices in cold skillet. Cook slowly for 6 to 8 minutes, turning and pouring off fat, until done. (Or cook on flat-plate grill.) Good with eggs fried in bacon drippings.

Oven-baked Bacon for a Crowd: Place slightly overlapping bacon strips on rack in shallow pan; bake at 400° F. 12 to 15 minutes, or until done. (No need to turn or drain.)

Barbecue chefs are divided into two camps: Those who don't use sauce and those who do. For those who do, we've a succulent collection of sauce recipes. Try them, vary them to suit your taste—and watch the antisauce crowd come around!

Bert's Smoky Barbecue Sauce

- (For spareribs, chicken, short ribs, lamb, etc.)
- ¼ cup vinegar
 - ½ cup water
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
 - ½ teaspoon pepper
 - 1½ teaspoons salt
 - ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
 - 1 thick slice lemon
 - 1 sliced, peeled onion
 - ¼ cup butter or margarine

- ½ cup catsup
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1½ teaspoons liquid or powdered smoke (optional)
- Mix first 10 ingredients in sauce pan; simmer 20 minutes, uncovered. Add catsup and next 2 ingredients; bring to boil. Makes about 1½ cups.

Fred's Barbecue Sauce
(For chicken, chops, turkey, rabbit, etc.)
2 teaspoons salt

- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ cups tomato juice
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard
- 4½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ to ¾ cup vinegar
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 3 minced cloves garlic
- 3 tablespoons butter, margarine, or salad oil
- Simmer all ingredients 10 minutes. Makes about 2½ cups.

Glass for Decor

By Caroline Coleman

LUSTROUS AND GLEAMING, glass block is both decorative and functional. It will provide both privacy and daylight, it can be used both indoors or out. What's more, it will blend with any decor—modern or traditional.

Made of two pieces of glass hermetically sealed together with a vacuum between, glass block has the thermal insulating value of an eight-inch brick or 12-inch concrete wall. As an exterior panel in the home, it adds glamour to the appearance of the house while helping to prevent heat loss.

Insulux glass blocks are available in six-, eight- and 12-inch sizes and a wide variety of face patterns ranging from the highly decorative random clear, a style which resembles the bullseye glass of Colonial days, to daylight-directing prismatic block used principally in schools, offices and industrial buildings.

In the home, the uses of glass block are endless. A panel of translucent glass block in the bathroom will provide daylight and still protect from prying eyes. Set in mortar they are impervious to water and steam and can be cleaned easily with a swipe of a damp cloth. In the bedroom and other areas of the house where privacy also is a desired factor, glass block will solve the problem of supplying daylight at no risk of exposure to outside view.

GLEAMING PANELS of glass blocks will add beauty to the living room or dining room as well as improving the overall appearance of the home. In the basement, glass block will assure plenty of daylight and they never rot or deteriorate in this damp location.

Inside the house they make ideal partitions in living and dining areas, for basement game rooms and for shower stall walls.

Interior panels and partitions can be erected without the use of mortar with a simple set-in-wood method which requires no special tools or equipment. Vertical and horizontal wood strips and wood wedges, available at Insulux glass block dealers, hold the glass block securely to form a sturdy, trouble-free panel. Easy for the average handyman to install, the set-in-wood panels can be disassembled and rebuilt in another area using the same materials. For obvious reasons the set-in-wood panels are not recommended for bathroom installation.

Glass blocks may be used in a variety of forms in home construction. Here is a panel with knickknack shelves.

Camera ANGLE

By The Shutterbug

WE ALL KNOW that, generally speaking, insurance is a very good thing. And speaking more specifically, in terms of our own picture taking, it's still a very good thing — especially when it comes to the once-in-a-lifetime snapshot situation.

You can insure having a satisfactory picture to help you remember the special time, place, event, or person by the simple means of taking not just one shot, but making several. It may mean that you have a whole series of good pictures, and that is fine, but at least, you're sure to have one that's really satisfactory.

It's well worth the time and film it takes to avoid that disappointment that comes when you find that the picture you want so much to be good doesn't come up to your expectations. And you are an unusual snapshotter indeed if this has never happened to you.

So, when your subject is one that's very important, shoot it more than once. Try it from this angle and that. If you've any doubt about speed or exposure, don't be afraid to experiment a little with camera settings.

Take your cue from the professional photographers. Don't think that this business of making several shots of the same subject is a sign of amateurish uncertainty. It isn't. The professionals seldom operate without the type of insurance I've been telling you about. They learned a long time ago that it is far better to use up a little extra film and time and be certain that the customer will have a satisfactory picture. If you were paying to have a picture made, you'd expect that insurance. So, when you are both the photographer and the customer, why be satisfied with less? Insure your special snapshots! Take more than one.

Once-in-a-lifetime occasions like this one call for good snaps. Insure special shots by taking several.

Keep Your Garden Blooming

Given the right growing conditions, roses will flower for most months of the year, keeping gardens bright.

By Bob Gilmore

YOU CAN have flowers in your garden, and home, practically every day of the year. Southern California is probably the only section of the United States where this miracle of horticulture is possible. The secret consists of intelligent plant selection.

Many plants serve a dual purpose: They are colorful in the outdoor garden and may also be used to advantage for decorating the interior of your home. Not all varieties, of course, will hold up after being removed from the parent plant. Yet it is possible to keep the interior of your home just as gay and fragrant as your outdoor living room.

Under ideal growing conditions you can have a rose garden in flower almost every month of the year. After the main crop of flowers has passed during the summer, the plants should be given a slight rest. Cut back superfluous growth and hold off water for just a very short period. Then feed again and the plants will reward you with a second lovely crop of roses.

One important factor in keeping plants flowering is to remove all full blown blossoms before they go to seed. In the first place, flowers that have lost their vigor are seldom an attractive sight. In the second place, a plant exerts tremendous effort to manufacture seeds; thus sacrificing future floral production.

A very popular annual that flowers on an all-year basis is the calendula. Its name, supposedly derived from the Greek word for calendar, indicates that the flowers appear every day of the calendar year. Very likely you can expect a few exceptions but calendulas are very dependable producers. The flowers are splendid for lovely shades of lemon and yellow. Their general effect is to brighten the landscape. Calendulas want a sunny exposure. They are also excellent for cutting.

TWO VARIETIES of pelargonium are also highly recommended for their ever-flowing characteristics. One is pelargonium hortorum which is the common geranium. It is often identified as the horse-shoe or fish geranium; the latter classification due to the odor of the leaves. Another pelargonium, variety peltatum is the ivy-leaved type and is well suited to Southern California growing conditions. The weak period of these two subjects is the winter season but even then you can respect a intermittent flowering program.

Other varieties that will prove valuable for adding color to your scene throughout the year include: Euphorbia splendens, laetana, alyssum, begonia semperflorens, the Chinese forget-me-not, lobelias, verbenas, vinca, petunias, statice perezii and salvia.

Window Boxes

By Walter Finch

FOR MANY city dwellers a window box offers their only opportunity for gardening. It can give much pleasure to the owner, and add an attractive decoration to the house. To get the greatest pleasure out of it, plant it yourself, and take care of the plants.

You can even make the box, if you know how to saw and drive nails. Use one-inch boards of cypress or white pine, and paint the box to harmonize with the house trim. A box should be at least eight inches deep, 10 inches wide and long enough to fit the window.

Outdoor boxes should have drainage, so that excess water from rains can escape. Never buy a self-watering box for outdoors, for every rain would flood the plants and eventually kill them. The plants to use will depend on the amount of sunshine they receive.

ON THE south side of a house, with sunshine unimpeded by trees or buildings, the balcony petunias will thrive. These develop long stems which trail from the box, bearing flowers of white, blue, red, pink and crimson. The balcony petunias were bred in Europe for window-box use, and are among the finest of all petunias.

Trailing lobelias have the same habit of growth, with small flowers of sapphire blue. Nasturtium Golden Gleam is an excellent window box plant, and there are red, pink and orange nasturtiums which have a vine-like habit. Dwarf zinnias, marigolds, phlox, and the lovely Heavenly Blue morning glory can be grown. Petunias and lobelia should be purchased as plants at this season, but the others can be grown from seed.

For boxes on the east and west sides of the house, enjoying a few hours sun, impatiens clarkia, begonias, fuchsia, lantana, pansies, dwarf celosia, and torenia will do. Geraniums will bloom well with as much as six hours sun a day. For vines, use vinca, and the various ivies.

BOXES on the north side of the house should be filled with foliage plants. Fancy leaved caladiums are excellent for the purpose. These grow from a huge bulb which can be saved from year to year. Their elephant's ear leaves are attractively colored. Ferns, coleus, sedum spectabile, and dwarf evergreens are other possibilities.

Because of the small quantity of soil which a window box holds, it should be the best obtainable and well enriched. Florists' potting soil or its equivalent should be used, and with it a complete plant food should be mixed at the rate of one heaping tablespoonful for each gallon of soil. A similar quantity should be added every month during the growing season.

A window box should be examined daily and watered whenever it is dry. If drainage is good there is small danger of overwatering.

Pet PARADE

By Bill Conway

THE SLEEK and handsome Boxer is a native of Tibet and his origin is shrouded in mystery. It has been established by authoritative investigation, however, that he was brought into Germany about 400 years ago as a mastiff and, through careful breeding and development, he has emerged as one of the best looking dogs seen in bench shows today.

The Boxer got his name—a comparatively modern name—from his habit of rearing on his hind legs and using his front paws and legs much like a boxer when he goes into battle. He is, essentially, a mastiff or a bulldog if you will—but if you ever have the opportunity of seeing one of these handsome and even-tempered dogs, goaded into a fight you will know why they call him a boxer.

The Boxer is a shorthaired dog, a cousin of the bulldog breed, and a close relative of the mastiff. He is a gentle and loyal dog but, on occasion, he can be a well-coordinated fighting machine.

The dog is relatively new in America but he has been bred and developed in Germany since the 16th century.

A typical Boxer stands about 23 inches at the withers, weights about 65 pounds, and may have a coat of fawn or brindle. White on the chest or legs is not a fault, according to judges.

In recent annual dog shows at the Municipal Auditorium the number of Boxers benched and winning prizes has grown rapidly.

Where did this fir tree come from? That question puzzles tree's owner, Mrs. Wilma G. Burgess, of 933 Orizaba Ave.

Mystery Tree

By Vera Williams

NO ONE KNOWS where it came from, or why, but a fine "Christmas tree" grows from the base of a palm tree in front of the home of Mrs. Wilma G. Burgess, 933 Orizaba Ave.

Mrs. Burgess noticed the tiny fir tree shortly after she moved to that address 17 years ago. It has grown steadily, and now is close to 10 feet high, its tip far above the reach of Mrs. Burgess' grandson, Wallace Askew, 6 feet 1 1/2 inches tall, a Wilson High School graduate and former City College student, now in the Naval Reserve at Los Alamitos.

Origin of the tree is baffling because firs in the neighborhood are of a different type, according to Mrs. Burgess. She also wonders how it gets nourishment and water. Because it is located between the palm and the curb, water she tries to put on it runs into the street.

Mrs. Burgess expects to hang Christmas ornaments and tinsel on it "for fun" next Christmas season.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week... Vegetables thrive to a degree approaching perfection in the Long Beach area in the fall and winter months. About twenty varieties can be seeded now. Dealers are now offering freshly-packed seed packets and also a wide range of vegetable transplants.

Mums will react favorably to regular applications of water during the next few weeks. You can feed these plants up to the time that the buds show color. Then terminate all feeding but continue watering at intervals of perhaps once every 10 days.

Daffodils should be planted as soon as you can make your selections. Unlike tulips these plants seem to do well with early planting.

A room that is plainly the preserve of a boy is the bedroom, above, of Dennis Lipsett. Note teletalk box in corner, part of system used throughout house.

Denim is a smart material to use for bedspreads in a boy's room; it's not only serviceable but it looks masculine. This bedroom is in the Eugene Jones home.

Youthful Bedrooms

A BEDROOM is a personal place and when one is very young it is a haven in which the occupant, boy or girl, can feel that everything in the room is his or her very own.

There's no one to share the space and order the cowboy program turned off or the feet removed from a propped-up position. Friends may come there to chat and their talk disturbs none of the adult members of the family. There is a place for quiet reading, for study, for storing treasures that may be no more than an oddly-shaped rock that oldsters would sneer at as an item of no consequence, for pinning up souvenirs and pictures — for use in a hundred ways as a home within a home.

The Dr. Edward M. Lipsetts of Rolling Hills gave careful thought to the rooms for their son, Dennis, and their daughter, Karen. Dennis' room has blue walls, red bedspreads with a ship design and matching draperies. The beds are built in and the heads are so placed that the headboards form a corner night table — an ideal place for a radio and record player. Adjustable reading lamps take care of the reading-in-bed problem. A set of bookshelves is built over the table and into the corner so that Dennis may put his trophies and other treasures here. Large, roomy closets are in this room and all the furniture is built in. The cork tile flooring is easy to keep clean.

By Elizabeth Knight

Karen Lipsett's room shows evidence immediately that it is made for a little girl. Her doll collection has its special place in the shelves built above the twin bed and the overflow items are attached to the wall. Her pet animal toys stand on top of the shelves. A tiny mahogany four-poster bed for a favorite doll has a place of prominence. Its spread matches the spread on Karen's bed, of candlewick pattern. Curtains are white cotton, easily washed, and the rug is a rose shag material. A small green desk is just the right size for a child and there is a child-sized dressing table with a dainty skirt and stool. The wallpaper is white with a pale rose flower design.

THE M. R. PEPPARDS furnished their son's room in maple, with green spreads on the maple twin beds. A wide windowsill holds a model ship, and Peppard's swords decorate one wall. The ceiling is beamed and a rifle and Peppy's trophies are on the narrow shelf which runs along two sides of the room. There's a built-in desk, a window-seat closet space under it and comfortable air-foam cushions on it. Tall bookcases beside the windowseat entice a boy into relaxing with a good book.

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Jones, 5900 Bayshore Walk, have a teen-age son who gets a great deal of pleasure out of his room, arranged especially for him in their new home. Mrs. Jones made the spreads for the twin beds out of navy blue denim and piped the white unbleached muslin curtains with yellow and red to match the call-co print wallpaper. The Joneses did not want built-in furniture for they feel that it is more fun to be able to change a room around occasionally. An old pine bench stands at one side of the room and a roll-top desk affords plenty of space for doing homework. The oval rag rug is braided in many colors. A large walk-in closet is adequate for a teen-ager's many clothes. Even the prints chosen for the wall are typically masculine; bird, dog or horse themes, framed in pine. The tremendous lamp on the night table was made from an old-time crock and there is room for a record-player, clock and album stand.

Trophies, a rifle and his father's swords crossed on the wall are decor features in Peppy Peppard's room.

How to Refinish Walls

By P. W. Jones

ONCE people start such ambitious projects as redoing floors and woodwork, there's no telling where it will stop.

The woodwork will look so nice, for instance, that the ceiling and walls will look shabby by contrast, and you might just as well finish the job right.

These days it's a lot easier than it used to be, what with new kinds of paints and gadgets that just about put the handyman around the house in the decorating business.

Get the whole room ready for the job before you start putting on anything new.

Tackle the ceiling first. If it was calcimined previously, wash off the old finish with warm water whether you plan to re-calcimine or use paint. If it was painted before and isn't too dirty, use a dust brush to get off all loose particles of paint.

Dust the walls, too, and wash any bad smudges. Then mix up some patching plaster, and fix up all the cracks on the ceiling and walls, covering these with a size after the plaster dries.

Some people paint right over old wallpaper, but we don't go along with the idea, even if it saves work. You'll want to take the old paper off some day, anyway; painting over it makes it much tougher. You can rent a steamer from your hardware man, and as the steam softens the glue, scrape off the paper with a broad-bladed putty knife, being careful not to dig into the plaster.

PREVIOUSLY painted walls need no further preparation before painting, but if you've removed paper before switching to paint, you'll have to size the whole thing.

One way to save a lot of time and muscle in your home redecorating is to use a roller. They come in a lot of styles—some you dip into the paint in a shallow metal trough that fits on your stepladder, some hold the paint in a reservoir inside the roller, and others are fed by a portable handpump pressure tank.

WITH a roller, you'll need a brush only for the trim and to touch up the corners. If you have rough-finished walls or ceiling, however, you'll have to stick to a brush for the whole job.

There's no need any more to fool around trying to mix your own colors. Most paint stores now have color books showing more shades than you thought were in the spectrum, and after you've picked the one you want by number, they'll mix it for you and then shake up the can on an electric machine.

Care of Range

The chief cook and bottle washer should remember that the finish of her gas range may be acid-resistant, but not acid-proof. This suggests wiping the surface daily with a damp soapy cloth to remove acid food splatters from the porcelain.

For stove efficiency, soak removable burners in soapy water; rinse, and dry out before using again. Reflector bowls and broiler pans should also be kept soap and water clean, and the oven frequently swabbed with a soapy cloth.

Matched Blankets

New decorator-styled blankets have been matched to the newest wallpapers, decorating fabrics, new paint color cards, rug samples and all other decorating accessories. Your bedroom can be a color harmony, whether you like quaint, old-time floral papers and fabrics, or new very modern accessories.

PROVINCIAL SWEEPS INTO FAVOR

If you agree that roocoos and furbelows have no place in your home today... yet find modern furniture cold and un-natural... consider provincial for a happy medium. Provincial designs range all the way from urbane French court designs, adapted for country life... to the rustic, rugged styles from our own Southwestern ranch house.

The popularity of provincial furniture of the various areas is a concession to the romantic nature of our society. It is warm and comfortable. It acknowledges design principles of a past period, still enduring today.

On the other hand, provincial refutes the elegant, formal way of life. Informality is the keynote. But it does not exclude sophistication. Its simplicity is more knowing than gauche.

Provincial furniture blends especially well with modern pieces, for you who like to intermix your furnishings. Lloyd's model arrangements include several of these combinations... strikingly new looking, and easy to reproduce in your own home.

Cheery Home by the Bay

Knotty pine walls and ceiling give an informal air to the living room of the J. D. Hamilton home on Alamitos Bay, a room that is bright and livable in summer and cozy and cheerful with a warm fire going in the colder months.

The Hamiltons' den is decorated with clever caricatures of friends. A davenport can be made into a bed.

COZY HOME beside Alamitos Bay is that of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hamilton, 5563 Sorrento Dr. The living room of the compact house looks out on a brilliant green lawn that drops down to the edge of the bay; cool and inviting in summer and warm and cozy with a fire in the fireplace on stormy days of winter.

The cozy living room is finished in knotty pine and all of the furniture is of Philippine rattan, which carries out the theme of informality which Mrs. Hamilton feels is essential to a home beside the water. The colors used are gay and cheerful — carpeting of soft rose, green, tan and gray in a feather design, with a feather pattern of wallpaper at the dining end of the room. Matching davenports are upholstered in green plastic (easily wiped clean) and the chairs are red and yellow. The dining room chairs have orange seat pads. An orange bamboo shade covers the window in the dining room and there is a green valance over it. The same green material is used in the valance over the picture window in the living room.

The master bedroom is large and furnished simply in maple. "I like simple lines," Mrs. Hamilton said, "and no doo-dads!" Instead of carpeting, Mrs. Hamilton has used throw rugs on the asphalt tile floor which is pale yellow with a dark green swirl pattern. The rugs are "Spanish tile" color and the shade on the brass lamp by the bed is the same color. A 27-foot closet gives plenty of space for clothing. The wallpaper is yellow also, and has a green pine branch pattern. Pale yellow faillie draperies are at the windows.

THIS IS MY little, but adequate kitchen," Mrs. Hamilton explained, when showing that part of the house. The room is so arranged that Mrs. Hamilton can stand almost in the same spot to do any part of the housewife's job in cooking or cleaning up after a meal.

The service room off the kitchen doubles as a breakfast room, with a natural stained knotty pine table and captain's chairs. The walls are papered with washable red and white check sanite. "All the walls in the house are washable," Mrs. Hamilton said.

Probably the room which the Hamiltons are most proud of is the den, because this they planned entirely themselves. They converted what formerly was a guest room into a den and selected a Philippine rattan davenport which can be made up as a bed for unexpected overnight guests. The upholstery is green with a wild goose design. The Hamiltons wanted a place for a piano and practically planned the room for this addition to their furniture. They chose a spinet type in blond wood.

"That's our 'rogues' gallery," said Mrs. Hamilton, pointing to the black-framed cartoon pictures on the walls. "They are all our own friends and were done by Len Ward of Long Beach."

THE UNUSUAL lamp on the spinet piano is fashioned like a turbaned native girl's Spacious and light, the Hamiltons' master bedroom has asphalt tile floors, a handy installation when it comes to housekeeping, and a long table by windows.

Lemon yellow stucco, chocolate brown trim are colors used here. A rope fence carries out nautical theme.

on these stands which were magnificent specimens of the silversmith's art.

MRS. ARTHUR F. BONZER of 104 Park Ave. has a splendid collection of these casters and has made a study of their history.

In the 1800s casters were made in tremendous volume and at prices where every middle class family could own one. In this country, Mrs. Bonzer learned, the bottles were blown in the glass works that sprang up all over, and many examples exist of these early silversmiths, such as John Hull, John Conley, Dummer Burt, and the Reveres.

During the Victorian period, this country entered into an era of expansion in industry and manufacturing. Elegance was the mark of having "arrived," and the more ornate the caster, the better. Colored glass was very popular, and American homes were filled with it.

One of the interesting caster sets in Mrs. Bonzer's collection was made for the mining camps in the Mother Lode country, out of agate granite-ware. It could withstand the harsh treatment of the rough miners in those early days of California.

There are many more casters in her collection than are shown in the accompanying illustration. She has gathered them together in her travels for many years. There are beautiful ruby red sets, amber, cranberry, aquamarine, light blue, clear glass, milk glass, satin glass, some in pewter stands, some in silver and others in glass, all reminders of that wondrous era when the glass blower and the silversmith were the artisans of the land.

Raynolds' 'Sinner' Full-Bodied Novel

THE SINNER OF SAINT AMBROSE, by Robert Raynolds. 443 pp. Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Inc. $3.75.

By Gerald Lagard

FOR 1000 years the known world had the Roman Peace, the competent and orderly rule of empire. Then in the lifetime of Gregory Julian, pagan noble, comes the magnificent disaster of the decadent empire and the beginning of the scramble for power in the Roman orbit.

Gregory's father was a stern man, and one who opposed the Christian emperor. So when he practiced divination and foretold the death of Theodosius, not once but twice, and the emperor at last died, Gregory found himself bereft of a father and of all the vast properties. Even his marriage to the Christian girl Marcia only delayed the doom which had been planned for him by the heirs to Theodosius' empire. There was the girl Galla Placidia whose eyes were on Gregory. And her ambition was to become Empress of Rome. And there was the ruthless Goth Alaric, whose loyalty to Rome had been purchased so often, but whose payment was always contested by the pompous Senate and the cupidity of the emperor. So at last Alaric brought his Goths to the 12 gates of Rome, and that was the start of the blood-bath which ended in the destruction of all but Gregory's spirit, which had been slowly moving toward Christ.

There are portions of this novel which are so superbly drawn, so timely in thought that one must quote: "I realized that without that margin of intelligence which enables a few men to make fewer or less fatal mistakes there would be no broad human society and no civilization. A few years later I found out that this margin of intelligence, if it be without moral soundness, is more cruel and corrupt than stupidity."

This full-bodied and brilliant novel is the Book of the Month selection for August.

All for Sake of Venus

ISLAND RESCUE (Appointment with Venus) by Miriam Wells. 228 pp. Garden City, N. Y.: Doubleday & Co. $2.75.

VENUS, finest cow in Britain, was in trouble. About to bear what was expected to be a champion of champions—precious beyond measure in the development of dairy cattle—she and the island of Armozel, where she lived, had fallen into German hands. This disaster first upset the Ministry of Agriculture, later became a headache of the War Office, from where special agents were detailed.

Maj. Valentine Morland, assigned to the rescue, agreed with his testy, mysterious superior—you couldn't win a war that way—but: "You could win a peace with a pedigreed calf and an armful of maize." He and the beautiful sister of the island's leader, with a radio operator, are landed on what becomes a critical mission.

Tickell proves himself a master at suspense. His intimate knowledge of the Channel Islands brings his characters in their idyllic, feudal existence into sharp relief. He spins his narrative deftly, humorously, unwinding an intricate plot that explodes into action. His background includes not only knowledge of the islands, but of the War Office, in which he rose to major on the general staff.

The story, which appeared condensed as a magazine serial, also was made into a film.—L. A.

MESQUITE JOHNNY, by Barry Cord. 220 pp. New York: Arcadia House. $2.50.

BROOMTAIL BABY, by Brett Austin. 221 pp. New York: Arcadia House. $2.50.

JOHNNY DELANEY fooled a lot of folks in Mesquite Junction. He looked like a sure-enough sucker for the smugglers and rustlers that were giving the Junction trouble. And for a time Irene thought she might have made a mistake by saving his life on the desert, but the time came when everybody learned the kind of a man Johnny was, and that was a man who was just all around handy to violence.

When somebody blew up the Great Western reservoir, it took Judge Lemuel Bates to run the culprits down and see that they got what was coming to them. That Bates was supposed to be on vacation made him a hard man to deal with. Culprits who insisted upon bothering him just had to be shown the judge needed rest.

MacArthur Beliefs

REVITALIZING A NATION: A Statement of Beliefs, Opinions and Policies Embodied in the Public Pronouncements of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. 56 pp. Chicago: Heritage Foundation. $2.

Norman Vincent Peale, D. D., has written the introduction to this compilation of the major speeches delivered by Gen. MacArthur. The second part of the book is made up of pictures from various newspapers of the general and his family from Japan, with correlation and captions by John M. Pratt.—E. G.

This photograph, "The Towers of Wall Street," is from "A Complete Guide to New York City," a new travel book written by Andrew Hepburn, published by Travel Enterprises, Inc., and distributed by Garden City-Books. Profusely illustrated, it covers such subjects as transportation, hotels, restaurants, sightseeing, churches, shopping and entertainment for those who plan to visit the big city.

'Theodora and Emperor' Told With Master Touch

By Joseph Joel Keith

HAROLD LAMB'S latest volume, "Theodora and the Emperor," is two stories in one: The tale of a Syrian child clown who became a queen, and the biography of a Macedonian peasant who became an emperor.

THEODORA was a clever girl of the entertainment field. During her travels with the protective men who found her entertaining, advanced by her friends, the girl was headed for power; she listened and learned.

JUSTINIAN, a young peasant first named Peter Sabbatius, came to his old uncle's home in Constantinople. Eager to study law, he was welcomed by the aged Justin; though a soldier of fortune and a friend of the emperor, Justin, the opportunist, found his ambitious nephew most helpful. Justinian, after clever political movements, labored until his aged relative was chosen ruler. But it was Justinian who was the high intelligence of the ambitious duo.

THEODORA came upon the scene at that time, and she and Justinian married. This man-and-wife team ruled the Roman world, and it was Theodora who strengthened the unyielding hold on this new world that they conquered together. As the stirring story unfolds it is Theodora who is the more dynamic. However, this was a perfect working team.

HAROLD LAMB cannot write an unexciting story. "Theodora and the Emperor" contains many tense and gripping scenes, all told with the master touch of one of the best of our true tellers of tales, the whole moving narrative living and breathing against a background of color, history and intrigue. And it has all the drama of a fine play.

LAMB, THE RESEARCHER, has done a magnificent volume of work. But nowhere does the job of research interfere with Mr. Lamb's main purpose: To weave sequence after sequence into one vast and colorful canvas that is the dramatic whole of "Theodora and the Emperor." This fine volume, published by Doubleday, deserves a wide audience. Truly, our Southlander Harold Lamb is gentleman and scholar. "Theodora and the Emperor" is dedicated to that other learned Southlander, Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, Mr. Lamb's Bel-Air neighbor.

CECIL B. DEMILLE should read this latest Harold Lamb volume; if produced as a motion picture, it should be transplanted to the screen by the genius of a DeMille.

First 10-Cent Air Letter Issue Announced by U.N.

UNITED NATIONS Postal Administration announces that the first of a 10-cent air letter sheet will be made Aug. 29. The air letter, which will bear a printed stamp of the 10-cent denomination, will conform to the dimensions and style used by the United States Post Office Department.

The air letter has a pale blue background with white lettering carrying the words "United Nations" in the five official languages: Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. There is a hatched band of blue lines around the front of the letter sheet.

The stamp printed on the sheet is a reproduction of the "Swallow and Emblem" air mail stamp of the regular issue, printed in blue.

Air letter sheets of the 10-cent denomination will carry messages to any part of the world.

First day cancellation service will be provided to collectors and orders should be addressed to the United Nations Postal Administration, Room 218, United Nations, New York, N. Y. Orders should be for not less than five air letters or larger quantities in multiples of five. This applies both to first day of issue and air letter sheets in mint condition. The minimum order is therefore 50 cents plus return postage and the usual registration, if desired. Registration fees should be included for any order amounting to $5 or more.

The United Nations Postal Administration will not process air letters which are to be addressed and posted to the addressee.

The Crime Front

THE DOUBLE MAN, by Helen Rath. 245 pp. New York: Random House. $2.50.

MOST folks in North Dobney thought that the beautiful Tess, attractive widow of Hanley Aiken, had driven Aiken to suicide when she left him. Tess knew better; knew that Aiken was a worthless philanderer who wrecked their marriage himself. Intuition told her that Aiken had been murdered and she had come to North Dobney to find the killer. Strange and furtive characters enter her more or less undercover investigation, strangest among them old Eloise Waine who died violently shortly before a horrible, grinning mask of her was washed up on the beach. And there was the child who saw the "double man"—one man right side up and one man upside down—walking on the beachhouse dock. Insp. McKee of New York is called in as the mystery tightens around Tess, finally to erupt in a climaxing fury of violent action.—G. S.

Mr. X' Springs a Trap

A GAME FOR THREE LOSERS, by Edgar Langhorne. 211 pp. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $2.50.

WHEN MR. HILARY, a man in high public life, found himself needing a new secretary, he hired Miss Chalinor, found her provocative and lovely beyond most women, kissed her without heed of the possible consequences, and found himself blackmailed. It was a thoroughgoing scoundrel to whom Hilary paid, and it was not the money; the popular member of the House of Commons had an independent fortune. But he also had a wife and a daughter and a conscience. And that his affair with the seductive Miss Chalinor had never gone beyond kisses further impelled Hilary to plan with the law to trap those who were bleeding him.

The trap was easily sprung, but when the case came to trial, Hilary found himself being forced out of the position of "Mister X" whose identity was being kept secret from a titillated public, and he took the witness stand to fight a lie and to pay for a moment's indiscretion.

A fast-paced and significant tale, beyond the usual crime story in characterization and plausibility.

Bird Hunt in Bahamas

FLAMINGO HUNT, by Paul A. Zahl. 270 pp. Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Co. $3.50.

MOST OF US can take flamingos or leave them alone. It would never occur to us to go looking for their nesting grounds, or to bewail the fact that are less of them in existence. Yet it did to Paul Zahl, and he wasn't even a bird fancier. A bio-chemist in New York, he heard that the rare red flamingo nested in the outlying Bahama Islands. Since no one could tell him for certain, he went down to find out—and was captivated by that elusive, wary bird.

During several jaunts among the islands Dr. Zahl learned the nesting habits of the birds, and met and introduced to us some very charming characters among the natives.

Like Rachel Carson's books, this is curiously pleasing treatment of a topic which the layman would normally give no more than a passing glance. It is delightfully written, it has a nice pace and offers an evening or two of real enjoyment to those of us who occasionally like to trot instead of proceed, as most of us do all the time, at a headlong gallop.

This is a book you'll like for your library, and writing scientists should be more warmly encouraged.

Keith Writes Anthology

Joseph Joel Keith, whose column "Books, Writers" appears exclusively on this page, will have a group of 14 poems in a new anthology to be published by The Delta Press. The editors are associated with the University of Mississippi. New work is also coming out in The Saturday Review of Literature, The Adelphi (England), and next month Prairie Schooner (University of Nebraska) will publish a poem of 200 lines by Keith.

Charles Angoff, executive director of Mercury Publications, and for many years managing editor of The American Mercury, is writing a long article on Keith's literary career for Prairie Schooner.

Olga V. Tunnell, executive secretary of Long Beach branch of Los Angeles County Medical Association, and Karl Seethaler, director of Long Beach Academy of Art, hang Seethaler's current exhibition in Medical Association branch office, 814 Pine Ave. This water color is "Picnic," which was shown in the California State Fair art show last year.

Paintings Being Exhibited by Gatch, Knaths, Shahn

AN EXHIBITION, of paintings by Lee Gatch, Karl Knaths and Ben Shahn will open Aug. 14 in the Los Angeles County Museum, Exposition Park, Los Angeles. The annual exhibition of Artists of Los Angeles and vicinity closes today. The current show, until Aug. 24, is "American Vanguard for Paris." 25 American paintings.

Under the general theme, "The Great Tradition," four art talks are slated by Frances Roberts Nugent. All are at 2 p. m. She will speak Aug. 15 and Aug. 17 on 19th Century art, and on Aug. 22 and 24 on American art. In addition she will speak Aug. 29 and 31 on the Gatch-Knaths-Shahn show.

Three documentary films on Africa will be shown Aug. 16, films on Oregon and Idaho Aug. 23, and on Arizona and Utah Aug. 30, all at 1 and 2:30 p. m.

Chamber music concerts, are slated for 3 p. m. each Sunday this month.

WHAT does a great artist think of his work, or think that his work should mean to others?

Persons trekking to the Henri Matisse Retrospective Art Exhibit at 5655 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, one of the most important one-man contemporary art exhibits for many years in America, are interested in his words of 47 years ago, but which hold true today: "What I dream of is an art of balance, of purity and serenity, devoid of troubling or depressing subject matter; an art which might be for every mental worker, be he businessman or writer, like an appealing influence, like a mental soother, something like a good armchair in which to rest from physical fatigue."

The show of 37 paintings, nine pieces of sculpture, 13 prints and drawings, color slides and portraits of the French artist at work will remain in Los Angeles through Aug. 17. Hours are 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily, including Saturdays and Sundays.

COMMEMORATING the centenary of the English landscape and architectural watercolorist, Samuel Prout (1785-1852), Huntington Library and Art Gallery at San Marino is showing prints, water colors, drawings and oils by the famous painter whose work strongly influenced America's landscape artists. The material is loaned the Huntington Gallery by several prominent museums, libraries, galleries and private collections throughout the country.

EDGAR EWING, Fritz Falss, Knud Merrild, Martin Mondrus, Jonathan Scott, Sueo Serisawa, Adja Yunkers and Jack Zajac have one-man shows in the Pasadena Art Institute, 46 N. Los Robles Ave., Pasadena.

Marlene Dietrich Again Records Her Old Songs

MARLENE DIETRICH not only spent three years serenading allied troops at the front during World War II; she also sang in her husky, provocative style to German soldiers and the German people in recordings broadcast by Allied stations to encourage the enemy to listen to our propaganda programs. Marlene has re-recorded some of the best of these in her native German tongue for a new Columbia album and despite the language barrier, they are better than any she has made in English. She seems more at home in the German language, and injects more feelings into the songs. The group includes "Lilli Marlene," "Mean to Me," "Time on My Hands," "Taking a Chance on Love" and "I Couldn't Sleep a Wink Last Night."

For contrast, try Marlene's latest release in English for Columbia, "Love Me" and "Come Rain or Come Shine."

Other choice new singles include Les Brown's danceable "You Forgot Your Gloves" and the latter with a vocal by Martha Tilton (Coral), the George Shearing Quintet's boppish "Simplicity?" and "Five O'Clock Whistle" (M-G-M), Jane Froman's haunting version of the lovely theme song from the new Broadway show, "Wish You Were Here" (Capitol), Tiny Hill's rhythmic but corny "After I Say I'm Sorry" and "Omaha" (Mercury), and Henry Ren's lush arrangement of the oldie, "Bye Bye Blues," backed by "Mandolino Mandolino" (Victor).

MUSIC of vocal interest is represented in the new recordings at the Long Beach Public Library. Most unusual are Bach, "Cantata No. 80" ("A Mighty Fortress Is Our God"), "French Songs of the 16th and 17th Centuries" (Cue-nod, tenor, with lute accompaniment); Haydn, "Mass in Time of War" (Vienna Akademie Chorus); "Music of the 12th and 13th Centuries" (Anthology by Pro Musica Antiqua) and Rachmaninoff, "Thirteen Songs" (Kurenko, Soprano).

Singing is also of first interest in the week's requests at the library, as shown in Musorgski, "Boris Gudonov"; Puccini, "La Boheme"; "Ten Tenor Arias" (Caruso, McCormack, etc.) and Verdi, "La Traviata."

50 Stories in One Book

MANY OF THE FINEST and most famous short pieces of fiction published in the last half-century are included in "50 Great Short Stories" (Bantam Giant, 35 cents), edited by Milton Crane. Many of these stories originally appeared in the nation's top magazines.

Another Bantam Giant being issued this week is Thomas B. Costain's "High Towers," a lusty novel in which much of the action takes place in old New Orleans.

New Bantam Book (25 cent) issues: "The Clay Hand," by Dorothy Salisbury Davis; "Gun Law at Vermillion," by Matt Stuart; "Castaway," by James Gould Cozzens; "Dark Madonna," by Richard Summers; "Theresa," by Emilia Zola, and "Big Shot," by Lawrence Treat.

In Art Circles Sculptor Honored at Fair

By Vera Williams
From-Telegram Art Editor

PA deCAN, Long Beach woman sculptor, took first place for sculpture in the art exhibit of the California State Fair at Sacramento. She won the top purchase prize with a Nubian kid, a baby goat, in alabaster. The figure is about 24 inches long, with the goat lying down, its head back over its shoulder. It was considered the "hit" of the recent Los Angeles Art Association show.

"A pair of these goats were born in Bellflower, and I hurried over to see them," explains the sculptor. "They were only about a day old, and very cute. I had a chance to watch them quite a long time, and make sketches."

Miss deCAN, who was born in Bellingham, Wash., has lived in Long Beach 11 years. She studied art at the University of California at Berkeley, USC, and attended a summer session at Tanglewood, Mass., when Ivan Mestrovic, great Yugoslav sculptor, was guest instructor.

MEMBERS of the Painters and Sculptors Club of Los Angeles who have a show this month in the Palos Verdes Public Library Gallery, will be honored at a reception and tea today from 3 to 5 p. m. in the Art Gallery of the library. The new show was hung yesterday.

Psychiatry in Action

THE MIND IN ACTION, by Eric Starvo, M.D. New York: Garden City Books. $3.75.

THIS REPRINT has a preface by A. A. Brill, who first introduced Freud to American readers. He contends that the author "an avowed Freudian . . . took chapters before I was actually convinced of it." In other words, Dr. Berne is a "keen prober rather than an ardent adherent of Freud." Here are answers to such questions as: Can people be judged by their appearance? What is the brain for? What is "going to a psychiatrist"? How is psychoanalysis carried out?

Writers Plan 10 Workshops

DAISY BALDWIN, president of the Long Beach Writers' Club, announces a series of 10 workshops.

The first, for members only, will be held from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Wednesday in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Mable R. Gerken, past president and author of "Ladies in Pants," is general chairman of workshops. Jessie Bradford Bond, retired teacher, will direct the prose section, and Mayme R. Krythe, also a former teacher and author of many magazine articles, will direct the article group.

Following the meeting, members will assemble in Bixby Park for a picnic lunch and further discussion of their work.

May Adjust Ceiling Prices

PRODUCERS, manufacturers, and resellers of specified building materials are permitted to adjust their ceiling prices to reflect freight rate increases which were authorized after Jan. 28, 1951.

Included under the new regulations are such materials as asbestos shingles, ceramic floor and wall tile, and gypsum, structural clay, and concrete.

CONSTRUCTION TIPS

By Jason C. McCune

LET'S TALK about the "humble mudsill" because it's really the "forgotten member" in the construction of many homes.

FOUNDATION IN A HOME

What is a mudsill?

It is usually a two inch thick by six inch wide (2x6) piece of lumber laid on top of a concrete foundation.

Floor joists are toe nailed to the mudsill and the mudsills are bolted to the concrete foundation to serve the purpose of holding your home firmly to this foundation in time of earthquake or heavy windstorm.

Mudsills are one of the most important structural members of your home. If they become rotted or weakened by termites, nails and bolts can easily pull out. A lateral stress such as created by an earthquake may then cause your home to slide off the foundation.

Mudsills are the hardest and most costly structural member to replace and yet they are the most exposed to dry rot and termite attack. Dampness under homes, due to watering, invites decay and the closeness of the wood to the ground attracts termites. Here is where the best preserved wood should be used.

Baxco Pressure Treated Foundation Lumber is impregnated with preservative salts which are driven, under tremendous pressure, deep into the cells of the wood. These preservatives—approved by the U. S. Government in Federal Specifications—are poisonous to both termites and fungi.

Ask your Architect or Builder to put Baxco Pressure Treated "Chemically Preserved" mudsills, posts and girders in your new home and get Built-In Lasting Safety. The total added cost in an average 5 room home will be less than you would pay for a pair of shoes.

In basementless areas where termites and dry rot damage under houses is prevalent it will pay you to protect all the foundation lumber including floor joists and subfloor. Just ask for Baxco Pressure Treated Foundation Lumber for mudsills, posts, girders, first floor joists and subfloor—it will add less than 1% to your total building cost—and you will be sure of getting a "Longer Lasting Home."

Be sure to specify

Don K. Deming, owner of the building above at 2425 Zandia Ave., placed this property before the market through Curtis Steinecker of the McGrath-Shank organization of Realtors. It was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Boise. Glen Crabtree co-operated in the sale.

As We Hear It

By the Classified Ad-Visors

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Convention International Federation of Real Estate Counselors held in Brussels, June 18-21, was attended by A. G. Maspero, past president of Realty Board. There were 350 delegates, 30 from this country, and 10 from California. After the convention was over the Masperos went on to Holland, Denmark, and Norway and on up into Lapland. From there on to London where they witnessed the mounting of the guards at Buckingham Palace. Art Maspero was much impressed at the way these European countries are re-establishing themselves. He says they are really working away and coming out of their problems. The stores seem to have a good display of merchandise in spite of shortages also the underground mode of transportation used in London proved very interesting. He says no one seems to have any fear about a new war and as a whole all the people looked quite healthy. His last stop was Glasgow, Scotland, and from there returned home. Incidentally, Art started in the real estate business in Leatherhead Surrey, England, 45 years ago.

Texas brags again — and their picnic was really worthy of it. Due credit to its president Winnie Cross who guided its activities throughout the year. According to the Microphone Man "the program the finest yet." Including Eddie Dean (a native Texan) and out of the world in music was the all-electric band. Texas' third richest oil man, Jack Porter, made a 30-minute talk on the life of Eisenhower. Also the male quartet which made special trip from Siloam Springs for the occasion. The old Texas fried chicken, black-eyed peas and square dancing was enjoyed by all, including Perry Johnson, H. S. Slinkard, Ford Montgomery, manager of the Lafayette Hotel; H. Clark Trigg, J. Ayers, Gordon Hayter, and many others.

Delegate H. Clark Trigg of Trigg Realty, 5732 E. Second, was responsible for entertainment and registrations from L. B. Moffett, post 1392 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars 53rd. National Encampment at Los Angeles. There were about 12,000 out of state VFW members attending. Julie Adams was official greeter for VFW. Notables were Ike Eisenhower, Gov. Earl Warren, Senator Noland and Senator Nixon and Craig Hosmer. A good job was done by all delegates.

He'll soon be back to his office. A. A. King Realty of 2653 Carson (not gone, just preoccupied with building new triplex) will soon be moving in.

Margaret Waters can then have the wide open spaces.

The missing Charles Wright of Charles Wright Agency, 4131 Norse Way, can be found week ends at the mountains. What's cooking? And — speaking of Charles Wright Agency — Jo Nelmes displaying pictures of new Riverside listing at Tuesday Real Estate breakfast. Were you one of the fortunate?

Reg Dupuy, a three-year letter man of the University of Southern California football team, has a life-long metal wallet pass to all the Trojan football games—he can take one friend.

Crabtree Lost in a Fog—Glenn, Grace and daughter Linda had a great three-week trip to Victoria, B. C. Ferrying to Whidby Island, running into a wall of fog, for one-and-half miles, then out like opening a door. When they reached Victoria B. C., they saw what Crabtree calls legalized murder, the game "lacrosse" where from three to five men are knocked out during a game. Some excitement at Bonneville Dam seeing the fish climb the ladder, etc. After spending several days in S. F. they came by Winchester House, the place of "wonder" of 144 rooms and are still wondering what went on in this house. Linda enjoyed throwing snowballs at Crater Lake most of all.

Real Estate Investments Becoming More Popular

REAL ESTATE as an investment, along with common stock, has gained in popularity during the last three years, while savings accounts and savings bonds have become less appealing to the investing public.

By early 1952, about one in every four consumers with incomes of $3000 and over preferred to invest in a type of asset whose value fluctuated, such as real estate or common stock, the Federal Reserve Board reported. In early 1949, the proportion had been one in nine.

Rate of return was the principal reason given by those who preferred real estate and common stock. A secondary factor was the protection they offered against inflation.

Income, size of community, and occupation influenced the preferences. In general, the larger the income or the accumulated savings, the greater the preference for assets of fluctuating value. In early 1952, for example, the proportion of spending units preferring common stock or real estate in the $7500 and over income group was nearly three times that of the $3000 to $3999 group.

The smaller the community, the greater, in general, was the popularity of investment in real estate and the lesser the preference for common stock. Chief proponents of real estate investment were farm operators. Retired, professional, and clerical and sales groups were those most in favor of stock.

Brookhurst Estate Homes Designed for Easy California Living

IN DESIGNING Brookhurst Estate, which is now ready for occupancy, Henry C. Cox and affiliated companies tried to arrive at the casual easy pattern for California living that most people want in a suburban home. Constantly the designer kept in mind an ideal of streamlined country style, operating efficiency and a maximum of open spacious areas. In short, Brookhurst Estate is a home designed for plenty of fun and play without disrupting its orderly tranquility.

The lanai-den features a built-in barbecue and overlooks the automatically filtered swimming pool with its submarine lighting for an exhilarating dip on warm summer evenings. On the east wall of the lanai-den is an all-mahogany bar for entertaining guests in the gracious manner. With entertaining in mind, the concrete floor slab has been left exposed so that dancing is carefree with no thought of harming the carpet.

Prospective home owners are invited to visit Brookhurst Estate at 9851 East Lampson Ave., Brookhurst Park, near Garden Grove from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. on weekdays, and as late as 9 p. m. on Sundays.

Brookhurst Estate is now ready for occupancy, beautifully landscaped, and completely furnished.

C. G. Sulis Sells Three-Bedroom Bellflower Home

MR. AND MRS. ALVAH Henningson, formerly of San Diego, have purchased a three-bedroom home at 6018 Ibbetson Ave. in Bellflower from Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Sulis Jr. This property was sold through the Multiple Listing Service of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

The Sulises, in turn, purchased a three-bedroom home at 6132 Bellflower Blvd. from Mr. and Mrs. Warren M. Underwood.

Buyers and sellers in both transactions were represented by Bert Barker, associated with Crabtree Realty.

Real Estate Class Sept. 27

THE FALL CLASS on the Fundamentals of General Real Estate Law and Practice will commence Sept. 27, according to John Bohan, educational chairman for the Board of Realtors.

For 26 years this organization has seen fit to establish courses that were designed to better acquaint the property owner as well as prospective salesmen and brokers coming into the business.

The fee is $23, which includes a comprehensive textbook. Registration may be made in advance by calling at the board office, 531 American Ave. As the class is limited to 35 it is suggested that if anyone is interested to call 7-1844 for further information.

Sales of Cafes Hit Peak

CAFE SALES in Long Beach have been brisk during the past six weeks with a record total of 20 such establishments changing hands in that period, according to an analysis of public notices of sales. The last report revealed only 11 transactions of this nature.

Thirteen service stations acquired new owners as compared to six previous registrations. This was followed by the recording of five grocery store transfers, and the sale of five cleaning establishments. Four liquor store sales were registered, and there were three sales each of furniture stores, stationery shops, and dime stores.

Beauty salons, beer bars, butcher shops, and cocktail lounges were next in the business spotlight with two sales apiece.

Transactions also included the sale of a new and used car lot, cigar store, seed company, drug store, freezer food company, candle shop, coffee shop, nurses institute, garden supply store, welding and machine shop, department store, meat department store, pharmacy, egg farm, gun bore and brush cleaning shop, a club, retail ceramics shop, variety store, and bakery.

ARNOLD BERG

Has been appointed as a director of the California Real Estate Association. He holds the same position on the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

New High

Engineering construction contracts awarded for work in the southwest (Southern California, southern Nevada, and Arizona) climbed to a new high for June 1952 and recorded the second greatest June volume in history. Contracts for this area totaled $21,516,199, a daily average increase of 12.6 per cent over the $19,947,702 total for the longer business month of May.

DR. REUBEN ANDERSON

Realtors to Hear Reuben Anderson

"THE HOLY LAND TODAY" will be the subject of Dr. Reuben L. Anderson's talk at the Board of Realtors Breakfast Forum next Tuesday morning in the Empire Room of the Wilton Hotel, according to President Clive Graham, and Program Chairman Ruth Lindquist.

The speaker, who has been pastor of the First Christian Church for the past eight years, recently returned from an extended trip through Greece, France, Jordan, and Israel. Before settling here, Dr. Anderson served churches in Illinois and Minnesota.

Norpark Home Sales Surpass $100,000

SALES AT Norpark Homes in the city of Anaheim were reported as exceeding the $100,000 mark during the past week by officials of Hahn-St. John, developers of the new community of three-bedroom and two-bedroom-with-den, 1½-bath homes at E. Center and Evergreen streets.

This was noted as being among the largest home sales figures recorded within the Anaheim area in recent months.

Continuing on display are four model homes, furnished by the Aaron Schultz stores of Long Beach and Anaheim in maple, modern, traditional and provincial motifs. The dwellings are open daily and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Norwalk Homes are priced from $12,350 and may be purchased by veterans on down payments as low as $1033, plus impounds. Monthly payments for veterans are described as being low while FHA terms are available to non-veterans.

Features of the homes include forced-air heating, automatic garbage disposal, brick fireplaces and barbecues, knotty pine kitchen cabinets, kitchen exhaust fans, red cedar shingle roofs, breakfast nook areas, service areas, TV outlets, colored bathroom fixtures. No. 1, oak floors, paneling in dinettes, two-car garages, glass bathtub enclosures, ceramic tile in kitchens and baths, and landscaped sites.

Improved with sewers, paved streets, sidewalks, curbs and gutters, the property is reported as situated in a centrally convenient locale of Anaheim, with schools, churches and major shopping centers nearby.

Welcome at Tract for Navy

NAVY personnel are invited to inspect this area's newest subdivision, Avalon Manor, which is located in a complete community of 2500 homes in the heart of the harbor region.

This beautiful smog-free community may be reached from Pacific Coast Highway and Wilmington Blvd. by turning north 1½ miles to 223rd St. The new exhibit home is open to the public now and is furnished by Community Furniture Co.

The two-bedroom and den or three-bedroom homes sell to veterans for a down payment as low as $590 plus impounds. Non-vets may purchase the houses for the sum of $1710 down plus impounds.

Luxury home features include the following advantages: Stall shower with a glass door, tiled sandwich bar, indoor-outdoor living with large patio, large wardrobe with built-in chest, solid oak floors, large steel casement windows, incinerators and clothes poles, TV outlets, near complete shopping center, smog-free climate enhanced by cool sea breezes.

Sales Agent C. R. Cotton's office is at 233rd and Main St. and he may be reached by phoning TErminal 4-1363.

New Director

Arthur Ridley of Long Beach has been named as a director of the Engineers and Architects Association for the 1952-53 term.

The 13-unit Del Rio Apartments at 1738 E. Fourth St. were sold to Gus Wiese this week. E. V. Reed and E. F. Barton, real estate brokers handled the transaction. Wiese will convert the seven double and six single furnished apartments with parking space for 20 cars into an "Own Your Own" apartment.

Barbara Moss to Attend Nareb Meet in Denver

BARBARA MOSS, executive director of the Board of Realtors, will attend the board of governors meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards being held at Denver, Colo., Aug. 14-16, it was announced this week by President Clive Graham.

As national chairman of the Multiple Listing Service, Miss Moss will address the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors on the subject: "Merchandising Property—The Modern Way—Co-operatively."

She will attend a conference of the board of governors in which plans will be mapped for the annual seminar program arranged for the trade association executives held in Chicago each year. The board also includes.

Del Rio Apts. to Be Own Your Own

E. V. REED and E. F. Barton, real estate brokers, located at 112 Linden Ave., this week announced the sale of the 13-unit Del Rio Apartments at 1738 E. Fourth St. to Gus Wiese.

Wiese has secured a permit from the State Real Estate Commission to convert the Del Rio to an "Own-Your-Own Apartment" with Reed and Barton as selling agents. The Del Rio consists of seven double and six single furnished apartments with parking space for 20 cars.

The apartment house is formally opened to the public today and open house will continue daily from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Suncrest Park Developers Report Sale of 110 Homes

THE GRAND opening last week of 429 Award Homes in Suncrest Park attracted much favorable attention, especially from non-veterans. By week end, the Volk-McLain Company, builders, reported that 110 homes had been sold.

Both vets and non-vets can move into any Suncrest Park home for $299. Full price is $6995. Monthly payments are as low as $58 plus impounds.

Each home buyer is awarded a certificate of quality, which certifies that materials, construction, and workmanship meet the rigid specifications set up for Award Homes.

Award Homes with three bedrooms are proving a great attraction for families in need of greater living space. Also available are Award Homes with two bedrooms and a den.

Dozen of special features such as Youngstown Steel efficiency kitchens, car ports, 5000 to 8000-square-foot lots, and exposed beam ceilings in the living room, are found in the Award Homes. Property improvements include paved drives and walks to front door, and paved streets. All utilities are in and paid for.

A new school site is located right within Suncrest Park, and a new shopping district is being created joining the development.

Builders' Exchange

CAPT. HARRY REGINALD will speak on the subject: "How to End the War" at the monthly membership dinner meeting of the Long Beach Builders' Exchange tomorrow night in the Supper Room of the Lafayette Hotel, Lowell Clarke, president, disclosed yesterday.

According to Program Chairman Dick Leebrecht, the speaker has created wide interest throughout the U. S. and Canada on his theory of the "Swapping of Dollars for Red Arms."

Meeting will be high lighted by a report on the exchange's state quarterly meeting in San Francisco July 25 and 26 by Henry T. Scott. Also an announcement concerning the State Builders' Exchange Convention Nov. 6-8 in Bakersfield.

Plans and specifications are now on file at the office of the Builders' Exchange for the following jobs, according to Manager Jess Farmer:

City engineer's office—Ornamental street lighting standards on Anaheim St. 2 p. m. Aug. 13; conversion of light standards on Atlantic Ave. 2 p. m. Aug. 13; painting exterior of Utilities Building and Veterans Memorial Building. 2 p. m. Aug. 13.

Long Beach Naval Shipyard — Additional Facilities Building No. 53. 11 a. m. Aug. 14.

March Air Force Base—Utilities—Job No. March AFB-52-ACRP-AF. Aug. 19.

Board of Education — Linoleum, asphalt tile and cork tile floors at various schools. Sept. 5; reroofing composition roofs at Lindbergh Junior High School. Sept. 12.

Suncrest Park is located on South Figueroa St., at 234th St. It is within convenient driving distance for those who work in Southwest Los Angeles, Long Beach and the Harbor area. Fast busses run past Suncrest Park to those areas and also to downtown Los Angeles.

Model homes, smartly decorated in French Provincial and modern, are open to the public daily and Sunday until 10 p. m.

Suncrest Park Award Homes are created by the same builders who previously offered to the public the Award Homes in Firestone Gardens and Ocean Hills.

Along REALTY ROW

By NEWT TODD... Realty and Building Editor

ARE YOU planning on a real estate business in 1961 geared to a more prosperous national economy, with higher levels of construction, industrial production, and expenditures by business and consumers? McGraw-Hill economists think that you should.

Their view of the United States in 1961 is based on a thoroughgoing study of industry's own plans for the future as they may be interpreted in the light of definite trends in marriages, births, and medical advances which have extended the life span. Estimates of this kind can, of course, be upset by war or major unemployment, the McGraw-Hill people recognize, and our potential economic development can be stunted by politicians, labor leaders, or businessmen themselves.

However, McGraw-Hill has good access to information on the planning being done by American industry. Its forecasts in the past have stood up well. Its recent report deals with the probable growth of the national economy as a whole and with growth possibilities of certain key industries.

Briefly, the McGraw-Hill forecasters see a national economy in 1961 serving a population 14 per cent greater than the 1951 total, with a labor force increased by 3.5 million workers. With average weekly hours down to 40 from the 43.9 of 1951, there will be in 1961 an increase of output per man of 20 per cent, and a jump in gross national product from $328 billion of 1951 to $380 billion in 1961.

New construction in 1961, according to this forecast, will soar to $36 billion, measured in 1951 dollars, as compared with the 1951 total of $29.9 billion. With disposable personal income up 17 per cent, consumer expenditures will be 24 per cent higher, and business capital spending will be 3.9 per cent greater than the $23.1 billion of 1951.

In this situation, the McGraw-Hill economists believe, government expenditures in 1961 will be about $60 billion, a decline from the $63.5 total of 1951. They suggest that business plan for a gradual rise in the price level, perhaps three per cent a year in wages and one per cent a year in wholesale prices.

This appraisal of 1961 is based on an average increase in productivity of two per cent per year, the average that prevailed in the period 1929-1950, although the forecasters say it would be equally possible for productivity to rise by three to five per cent a year.

A national economy of these proportions in 1961 means a sound future for the real estate investments of 1952. In fact, our economy cannot possibly expand to the extent indicated without generating a greatly stepped-up demand for real estate of all kinds.

Lakewood Plaza's sixth unit is rapidly nearing completion. The home shown here is one of 516 three-bedroom, two-bath homes under construction north of East Spring St. between Studebaker Rd. and Palo Verde Ave. One mile east of Bellflower Blvd., in the Lakewood district.

Developers to Rush Sixth Unit of Lakewood Plaza

HOMES in Lakewood Plaza's sixth unit will be finished at the rate of eight a day beginning in approximately two weeks, it was announced yesterday by the Aldon Construction Co., the developers.

On the basis of present sales pace, Aldon officials estimated that the 516-home sixth unit would be 90 per cent sold out before completion of the first home. More than 400 homes have been sold to date.

Current section of Lakewood Plaza consists of three-bedroom, two-bath homes, each with Arizona flagstone fireplace and hearth, situated north of East Spring St. between Studebaker Rd. and Palo Verde Ave., in the Lakewood district.

The dwellings are all offered at the one price of $12,000. Veterans may buy them on down payment of $825 plus impounds and closing costs, and on terms of $59 a month for principal and interest. Terms also prevail for non-veterans.

Seven model homes are on view daily and Sunday to demonstrate the Aldon "luxurized" features to be found in every dwelling. Four of the model homes are furnished throughout by the Aaron Schultz furniture stores of Long Beach. Hours for viewing are from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Every home has birch or knotty pine kitchen cabinets in natural finish; step-saving central hall plan; wall of windows and French door facing terrace; living room wall paneled completely in ash or Philippine mahogany in natural finish, and Waste King garbage disposal.

Lakewood Plaza is described by its developers as unique among large-scale developments. The entire property, they note, was planned in its overall aspects to be a complete community. For location, they point out, they chose an area close to employment centers, schools and churches, recreation and shopping.

There are 29 different designs, they explain, with numerous color schemes for each, so that no two homes are the same.

The homes have such estate-class touches as built-in bookcase in many models; extensive use of luxury materials including birch, Philippine mahogany, redwood, Arizona flagstone, flag crete and slumpstone, and rich decorator colors.

Opens Office

Architect Gordon F. Powers has opened an office at 251 E. First St., Room 9. Powers is a University of Washington graduate and has worked with various architects in the city of Long Beach for the past five years.

A dream will come true for officers and members of Long Beach Builders' Exchange when they have completed their plans room in their new building at 1423 Walnut Ave. Jobs involving every architect and engineer in this area will be represented in the plans submitted for the convenience of the members. Increase in Tracts

THE 1951-52 fiscal year ended with a total of 1750 subdivisions filed with the Division of Real Estate, representing an increase of 4.2 per cent over the 1680 filings of the previous year.

The varying intensity of subdivision development during the course of the past year shows the effect of credit regulations, building material restrictions and other uncertainties. During the first six months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952, only 744 subdivision filings were made. Subdividers and developers generally were proceeding with extreme caution, finding it difficult to gauge the effect of the rather stringent controls applying to real estate credit and materials.

As credit and material controls were progressively relaxed, subdividing and development spurred upward so that the first six months of 1952 could be classed as of "boom" proportions in comparison with most past years. During this period, 1006 subdivisions were filed as contrasted with the 744 for preceding six months. It should be noted, however, that most subdividers and developers are still proceeding with considerable caution.

Plan Bathroom Changes When Building House

HOME BATHROOM expansion should be planned when the house is built.

Costs for increasing such facilities are often unnecessarily high, according to a home remodeling report by the Tile Council of America, because provision for extra plumbing was not "roughed in" when the house was originally constructed.

Failure to install extra drain and water piping in the walls when the house is built too frequently results in expensive tearing-out of walls when powder rooms, basement toilets, or second shower facilities must be added due to family growth.

The report also makes these other recommendations concerning foresight in bathroom planning:

Using durable materials such as clay tile for the bathroom walls and floor avoids the necessity of costly resurfacing when the house is several years old. The same long-range economy is suggested for plumbing fixtures and piping.

It is wise to estimate future water needs accurately, and install a system which will deliver adequate supplies when additional tubs, toilets and sinks are put in.

Initial installation of compartmented facilities probably will be adequate for the family's needs for a long time. Such equipment usually consists of a bath and a half in the space usually allotted to the single bathroom, and includes a separate toilet room, a tub-shower combination, and an individual shower stall. These facilities not only share the original installation of clay tile, but also the plumbing lines, thus cutting costs.

Conservative selection of wall, fixture and floor colors is important in the long run. "Decorator" choices of which a family may tire easily should be avoided.
